After-School Courses at NESE

After-school courses are extra non-intensive additional choices that NESE offers students. Each class, except Legal English, meet twice a week for 90 minutes. Legal English meets four times each week for 90 minutes. Please note that after-school courses cost an extra $250 per session and only take place when at least five students register for the course. Legal English costs an extra $500 each session and are always offered, regardless of enrollment, during NESE's July and August sessions.

Pronunciation - Tuesdays & Thursdays 3:30-5:00

This course is designed to give students extra practice and more self-confidence in conversations in both formal and informal situations. The class increases self-confidence by giving opportunities to practice the correct pronunciation of difficult vowel sounds, voiced and unvoiced consonants, blends and verb endings. Students also work on intonation and speed. This class is structured to meet the needs of the individuals in the group. (Available to students in all levels.)

Legal English - Monday - Thursday 3:30-5:00

In this course, students are introduced to the American judicial and legislative systems. They become familiar with legal terminology, learn how to analyze cases, and also understand how legal documents are composed. In addition, students view actual court proceedings through visiting real courtrooms and watching videos. (Completion of Level 7 or Initial Placement in Level 8 required.)

Workplace Communication - Mondays & Wednesdays 3:30-5:00

Regardless of their current or future profession, students learn practical skills and techniques (and English) for conducting business either in or with organizations in the United States. In other words, Workplace Communication is an etiquette guide to the peculiarities of the workplace in the United States. Whether a student is a lawyer, scientist, businessman, artist, or philosopher (or still in university), this course, provides him with the tools to understand and work effectively with and within any organization in the United States. Some of the topics this course examines are: professional etiquette, the importance of "political correctness", management strategies, issues of privacy and intellectual property, electronic and written communication, oral presentation, and how to succeed in the workplace. (Completion of Level 6 or Initial Placement in Level 7 required.)

University Preparation - Tuesdays & Thursdays 3:30-5:00

This course teaches students how to prepare research and technical papers, theses, and dissertations to a standard expected by United States universities. Students learn how to use an American university library for research purposes, and these skills will help them complete their class assignment: a research paper complete with footnotes and bibliography. (Completion of Level 7 or Initial Placement in Level 8 required.)
